When putting your gas cap on, turn until you hear the click.

If your “Check Engine” light appears, always check your gas cap first.

The fuel system in your car is a sealed system that traps harmful gas fumes. If the gas cap is left off or not sealed properly the gas then is able to escape from the system. When this happens, a self-test of the performance system detects this “leak” in the Evaporative Emissions System and the check engine light comes on.

Clean up fuel spills!

Environmentally, it has the potential to infiltrate our ground water after a heavy rain.

Gas is too expensive to leave on the ground.

Carpooling, public transit or even walking to work can put you back in control of your finances.

Leaving your car at home is the best choice you can make!

Tires

Prevention

Regular maintenance of your vehicle is a must if you are to avoid having to purchase a new or used one. Changing your oil, air filter, fuel filter or even purchasing new tires will save you money in the long run.
